National Alliance for Partnerships in Equity Elects Executive Committee for FY 2013

As the 2013 fiscal year gets underway the National Alliance for Partnerships in Equity (NAPE) is proud to announce the individuals who will be serving as officers on the Executive Committee. NAPE is a consortium of state agencies and affiliates who have joined forces to work collaboratively to promote equity in education and workforce development, including career and technical education. NAPE's membership is committed to the creation of equitable classrooms and workplaces where there are no barriers to opportunities.

The members of the NAPE Executive Committee for FY2013 include:

Past-President, Jeanette Thomas, Equity & Perkins Consultant, Iowa Department of Education;

President, Francine Shuman, Director of Special Populations/Program, Technical College System of Georgia;

President-Elect, Tasha Kawamata Ryan, Marketing Specialist, Hawaii State CTE Office;

Treasurer, Debra Huber, Administrator, Education Equity and Priv. Post Secondary Institution, North Dakota State Board for Vocational and Technical Education;

Members at Large:

Nancy Mitchell, LINK Coordinator, Otero Junior College;

Teresa Boyer, Director, Education and Career Development Research, Rutgers, The State University of NJ;

Bill Hatch, Consultant, Special Populations and Equity, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction;

Kristi Enger, Career Guidance and Special Projects Coordinator, Idaho Division of Professional – Tech Ed;

National Alliance for Partnerships in Equity

CTEEC Representative:

Eva Scates Winston, Equity and Collaboration Specialist, Minnesota State Colleges and Universities;

Monica Marsh, Butler Technology Center, D. Russell Lee Career Technology Center

These individuals represent true equity professionals. As dedicated volunteers providing service to their professional organization these individuals have the opportunity to shape national policy and programs affecting the success of special population students across the country. NAPE looks forward to another successful year under this team of exceptional leaders.
